The honored administrations of Mayors Dooth, Schroeder and Low made the city prosperious was not the success of party, but of the great body of citizens. Such, we piedge, shall be our success in this election. While the Republican party takes no stand as yet on the question of the consolidation of the cities of New-Yark and Brooklyn, and does not deem the time yet the for taking such a stand, it is in favor of the submission of the question to the people of the two cities.

Lamb and John Truslow as good men for the nonivation. The resolutions adopted by the various independent bodies were also read. The report of the committee showed a desire that the convention should name a man who would measure up to the proper standard. A circular was presented to the delegates from the Citizens' Union to the effect that if W. J. Gaynor was nominated he would accept.

BOODY NAMED FOR MAYOR.

THE BROOKLYN DEMOCRATIC MACHINE RUNS SMOOTHLY AND EVERYTHING IS FIXED TO SUIT THE BOSS.

The Democrats of Brooklyn, or rather the men who control the Democrats of Brooklyn, met last night in Jefferson Hall and went through the hollow formality of holding a convention and nominating the ticket for the municipal government. The real the ticket for the municipal government. The real convention was held some time before within the walls of Hugh Melaughlin's head, and at a so-called caucus held Friday afternoon he made the final arrangements for last night's convention. The meeting was orderly and everything went on as all well-oiled machinery should do. The time to machine cheered just as it had been instructed to do. When silence was required there was some of the finest silence manufactured on this side of the At-Barrett were secretaries. In the calling of the lantic brought forth. When only a smile of approval was desired, that particular brand of smile was visible in all parts of the hall. The Brooklyn Democratic machine evidently is in good working order, and in prime condition for turning out ma

After the nominations were made Mr. Boody made a speech, four-fifths of which was taken up in whitewashing his conduct while in office. He said that he went into the Mayor's chair without a promise to any man. He also endeavored to show that the management of Brooklyn's municipal affairs compared favorably with that of other large cities. Mr. Boody warned his hearters to distinguish between newspaper attacks on him and the truth. HUDSON COUNTY ASKS THE PEOPLE TO AID HIM IN THE STRUGGLE AGAINST VICE AND CRIME

Convention the following official letter of acceptance:

In response to your notification of my nomination by the Republican County Convention, held on October II, 1832, for the office of Sheriff of the county, I feel, in accepting this nomination, the responsibility of this important office.

A great crisis is upon the people of this county and State in the impending election. Certain interests which appeal to all men who believe in good government are at stake. The public belief is that the office of Sheriff, to which I have had the honor of being nominated, has been used in the past to shield and protect certain criminal practices existing in this county. The public I believe, is fully convinced that in order to change prevailing methods and punish crime of whatever sort, and by whomsoever practised, a change is necessary in the manner of conducting the office of sheriff, and especially in the matter of drawing representative grand juries and competent and upright petit juries, so that the office shall be returned to its original and proper function of leaving the channels of justice free from political and eriminal control, and that infractions of the law of any nature shall be punished.

I pledge myself, if elected, to serve the whole people, irrespective of any political ties, and to see to it that the Grand inquests shall be composed of men whose standing in the county shall be above repreach, and whose actions shall be free from bias, control, self-interest, or any other motive except to serve the public's true interest and bring violators of the law, of no matter what degree or business, high or low, to justice, and to provide such petit juries as will be canable and courageous enough to render verificis called for by the evidence. My administration of the office a forth to rout out evils that have since grown up among us. THE MEN TO SEND TO THE ASSEMBLY. NOMINATIONS MADE BY NEW-YORK CITY RE-

The Republicans of this city last night nomnated as candidates for the Assembly men who are entitled to the support, not only of the Republican voters of this city, but also of those who are opposed to the list of men which the Tammany Hall bosses said might go to Albany. In some of the districts the Republicans did not nominate last night. One of the districts in which the conventions were adjourned was the VIII. enventions were adjourned was the VIIth. This is the district in which Otto Kempner, the fearless anti-Tammany member of the Assembly is expecting an indersement by the Republicans, If he gets that indorsement he will be elected. There are two or three peoply in this district who have opposed the indorsement, but the adjournment of the convention last night is understood to mean that he may be approved, after all. The Republicans of the XIth Assembly Dis trict put up an exceedingly strong man in James B. Sheffield. He is an activate and stands well with all who best interest of the State and stands well with all who excellent speaker and stands well with all who know him. TELEGRAPH WORK ALMOST PARALYZED. THE GREATEST DAMAGE TO THE SERVICE SINCE THE BLIZZARD OF 1888.

severe storm of Friday night did great damage to the wires of the Western Union Telegraph Company. It was next to impossible to communicate by telegraph, yesterday, with hundreds of places. The windstorm had broken the wires, and telegraph poles had been blown down. All dispatches, filed with the Western Union Company yesterday and last evening were taken with the understanding that they were subject to delay. It was impossible to estimate the amount of amage done to the company's wires and service. but last night there came a reassuring statemen from the manager of the New-York office that the company would, in all probability, be able to do business nearly as well as usual by 8 o'clock

C. Robinson, the assistant night manager of the Western Union office, at No. 195 Broadway, gave the following interesting details to a Tribune reporter last evening:

I can say without hesitation that last night's storm was the worst, as regards its effect on the telegraph wires, of any storm since the blizzard of 1888. It not only blew down wires, but hundreds and hundreds of telegraph poles have been blown down, too. When a storm is confined to one part JOHN H. WOODBURY, Dermatologist. down, too. When a storm is confined to one part of the country, we can manage well enough, but last night's storm has affected, with one exception, the telegraph service to all parts of the country. Strangely enough, that one exception is the State of New-Jersey. You would naturally suppose of New-Jersey. You would naturally suppose that Asbury Park and other places in New-Jersey would be about the first to suffer, but last night about the first place we heard from was Asbury "There is only one place that we cannot reach by any means whatever. That is the City of Charleston, S. C. The service to the South was badly crippled. It is improving every hour, though, I am receiving dispatches every few minutes saying that circuits are being restored everywhere. "A severe rainstorm was reported between 5 and 6 this afternoon, between Buffalc and Detroit. We have one wire to Pittsburg. We have twenty men on five quadruplexes connecting with Philadelphia, and two quadruplexes and or single wire with Washington. In the East we in Connecticut, and we have six duplexes connecting with Boston. In the South we can reach Savannah, Atlanta and Jacksonville. Atlanta seems not to be affected by the storm. The service to Chicago is fair. There is a break between Syracuse and Buffalo. All the Southern business must go by way of Chicago. From Atlanta almost every Southern point can be reached. We have two 'Wheatstones' point can be reached. We have two wheatscalduplexed with Chicago.

"There are many breaks, and the wind has bothered us all day. We have all had to work extremely hard, but are doing better every hour. By 8 o'clock this morning we had sent out every man who could climb a pole or splice a wire. Their work is telling favorably on the service constantly. By 8 o'clock to-morrow morning the chances are that we shall be clear on everything."
